Hello, everyone. Today, I need to say goodbye to you. Thank you for everything. You helped me realize the fun of teaching and learning languages. Before coming to Japan, it was difficult for me to find what I wanted to do, but after spending two years here with you, I decided to become a Japanese language teacher in my country, Brazil. If you don't have a dream right now, it's OK. But you should take action to find your dream. Today, I'd like to give you some hints for your future. First, ask yourself, "What do I like?" or "What am I interested in?" It's necessary to know more about yourself. Next, try something new. By doing this, you can get a new way of thinking. Third, talk to different people and ask them about their experiences. These things will help you find what you want to do. I hope you will have a great future. Thank you.
